Dear Vickie and Jim:

We received your letter the other day, Jim, and you certainly have obtained an outstanding printer for your computer. I think it must surpass the printing in most books.

I don't think that you would enjoy yourself, Jim in the Mideast. I understand that it is sort of warm over there, not only the temperature but the action. Here the climate seems to have settled down to where it belongs. It was about time since we were getting quite tired of hot weather.

I congratulate the Kennedy Center for obtaining Vickies services as an Opera Guild Volunteer, and of course I congratulate you Jim for continuing your University education. I am not quite sure why anyone would enjoy a course on "Milton", but how can I question a guy who owns a PHD.

I feel especially good today, since I just came from Group Health with a new pair of lenses for my glasses. My old ones had become unsatisfactory, and I could see myself failing the Drivers License Test that I must take in a couple of months or so. The idea of not being permitted to drive is a dread of mine. Of course that time will come, but not yet, Please!

Helen and I love you both, and wish you the very best at all times.

E.P.C.
